Y. W. Give Banquet For Eastern Relief

Enjoyable Social Affair Held at the College Wednesday
March 2.

The banquet served by the Y. W. C. A. to raise money for the Eastern Relief Fund was very successful; 250 people enjoyed the delicious menu prepared by the Y. W. girls and the faculty members. The dinner was served at long tables arranged in the library. The net proceeds of the entertainment amounted to about $125. The menu consisted of:

Baked Chicken	Gravy
Mashed Potatoes	Dressing
Peas	Pickles
Baked Apples, Whipped Cream, Cake, Coffee.

The dinner, however, was only one of the entertaining features of the evening. There were about half a dozen good side shows. The first to make themselves known were the cow-boys and desperadoes of the wild west. They raided the dining room and forced the guests to listen to the marvelous descriptions of their wonderful accomplishments. Their barbaric appearances, and murderous weapons caused a nervous tension and uneasiness among the guests. The sounds of the fire arms broke forth spasmodically thruout the evening.

Proceeding down the hall from the library, the first attraction to the left was the exhibition of the incomparable baby incubators staged by the Husky Hikers. This was widely advertised and as well patronized. Inside this room were five of the best-behaved, most contented babies imaginable. Four of them were incubator babies. The remarkable fact was that some of them had almost perfect sets of teeth, others did not become sufficiently amused to show if they had cut any teeth or not. The fifth baby sat in a baby carriage and gazed innocently at the strangers with wide-open brown eyes.

In the next room the Eureka had a merry-go-round. And farther on the Philo had an unusual display of rare specimens and valuable information. The best feature in the Philo room was Bobo, the educated ape.

The Orchestra had charge of room 318. They presented a program which was interesting and showed skill especially along architectural lines. They presented several duets upon stringed instruments of their own making; also mandolin music, and a vocal solo by one of the relatives of Bobo.

Staff Members Use Their Training.

Alma Lucas, one of the editors of the Green and White Courier, recently wrote an article that was printed in the Poland-China Journal of Kansas City. Later it was copied by the Stockyards Journal, the Star, and the Maryville Democrat-Forum.

It was an interesting write-up about Robert Gallagher of Maryville, the five-year-old Poland-China buyer.

The boy's judgment in selecting the best of the bunch at different sales attracted the attention of the auctioneers who commented on his ability and said that it compared favorably with any of the experienced breeders who were present.

Besides this article, Miss Lucas has written some articles for the Kansas City Star.

Miss Lucas has just completed her third term of training in the Journalism class. She has been the editor of Here and There Among the Colleges during the Fall and Winter terms.

William Mapel, another member of the staff is now Maryville correspondent for the St. Joseph Gazette.

Alice McMurphy entertained a few friends Saturday evening, February 26 at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George McMurphy, with a six o'clock dinner followed by a line party at the Electric and a slumber party. The guests were: Alice Wel-ling, Audrey Craig, LoVeta Epperson, Ruth Bookman, and Margaret Remus.

The supposition has been that there are more calls for teachers qualified to teach agriculture, the modern languages, home economics, manual training, or athletics but the figures of last year show that English, Latin, History, and Mathematics, respectively, are the subjects for which teachers are most demanded.

The work done by this committee is free of charge and is accessible to all.

Mr. Hawkins is chairman of the committee.

If you are interested in securing a position for next year it would be well for you to interview Mr. Hawkins.

A community meeting, which was one of the best given this year, was held at the Fryar school near Raven-wood, Feb. 22. Gertrude Horton, a student at S. T. C., last summer is teaching the school. She took the Vitalized Agriculture course while here and is conducting the work with success in her district.

Track Men Show Good Form Now

Rice and Hobbs are Putting the Men
Through Some Snappy
Work-Outs.

The Track Team is beginning to show some real speed and form now that the season is well under way. Coach Rice and Dr. Hobbs are working the men full time now and results are being gained. Runyan and Williams are coming out in fine shape on the dashes and Pickens, Webb and Ferguson are showing form on the longer runs. The high jumpers and weight men are working also and according to dope the Bear Cats will have a winning team this season.

The tennis men are also out and working hard, while Miss MacLeod has the girls under charge.

A track meet and a tennis tournament will be held soon to ascertain the merits of these athletes and after that there will be several dual meets and then the big meet of the conference at Kirksville.

Since the men are beginning to show true form and since we have more than competent coaches and because the school is behind the team, they cannot lose, so watch the Bear Cats. Look out for the Green and White.

Provision will be made for everyone who wants to play tennis. The indoor courts are marked off and are available any hour when not used for class work. Those who know the game should practice for the inter-school tournament. Girls' teams and mixed teams are planned for both singles and doubles. The outdoor courts will soon be ready.

Mike

One autumn day several years ago, a stranger suddenly appeared at the College. He was not in the least attractive. Probably, students and faculty passed and failed to notice him many times. He seemed in search of something or someone. When students first noticed him, they thought he must be in search of Prexy...everyone immediately goes to his office on coming to the building, so why should not this little dog stranger? Surely he never dreamed then of the number of times he would be gently helped out of that same office by Prexy himself.

As the fall days became shorter and winter came, Mike still remained. His college acquaintances became fast friends who noticed again and again how intelligent he looked. From room to room he wandered day after day, bringing smiles where frowns had been but a moment before.

Faculty and students alike listened for the fierce little bark; rewarding all his friendly advances with either a kindly pat or a less affectionate kick.

Thru the winter season he was mascot at all basketball games. Did the College win? Of course they did for Mike was barking his peppy college spirit thruout the whole of every game. In his little green and white blanket, he assisted the cheer leaders.

Even the week ends were times of gladness for Mike. His College friends never forgot him. Many Saturdays and Sundays he enjoyed in the Colbert home.

Spring came and with it came sorrow to the College. Mike was accidentally poisoned. No more joyous barks welcomed the eight o'clock bell. No more did the dog friend bring cheer into the class room. The students in passing thru the hall dropped their pennies, nickels, and dimes into a box to show their sorrow, and a little tombstone still stands at the east of the building, as a monument of one who lived his life in devotion to his College.

January—The Frost Month.

When all the world is at rest, then January comes,

Bringing with it cold, harsh winds, which seem to pierce and numb

The hands and feet of all; but set the blood in cheeks aglow,

As we watch the criss cross frolic of the snow.

Old mother Nature is asleep, the grass and flowers too,

Upon her bosom covered o'er a blanket so thick and new

That old North Wind, keen and cold, cannot reach them there,

But, roaring, moaning, lion-like, tosses snow-flakes everywhere.

Hushed is the murmuring brook, for King Frost with fingers chill

Has glassed and fantastically sculptured every winding rill,

All of the trees are bare, except the stately evergreen,

Whose outstretched arms, laden with snow, can here and there be seen.

A few of our friends, the birds, remain with us here,

Which, twittering as they hop about, fill our hearts with cheer.

Now and then, a rabbit, in search of food, o'er the bleak field runs,

But it does not always escape the cruel darts of the hunter's guns.

Purple and gold are the sunsets, clear and bright is the night,

The moonbeams transform the snow-flakes into dazzling diamonds bright,

Stillness, solitude, grandeur; our inward thoughts apall,

And awed we are by the mighty works of God in all.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9, 1921.

Foresight or Hindsight, Which?

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy;" but there is a time for work and a time for play.

Right now, at the beginning of this spring quarter, is the time for everyone to make up his mind to keep his work in hand. When the faculty are thoughtful enough (tho some are not) to assign work ahead, cannot the students have will-power enough to do the work at the proper time, instead of leaving it all to do the last week?

Thoughtlessness on the part of the faculty in piling up readings at the last minute and lack of will-power on the part of the students is why many people were unable to attend the colonial party February 22. It was near the close of the quarter and work that ought to have been done weeks before HAD to be done that evening.

During the spring term there are several activities which everyone will want to attend. The inter-society contests, April 13-15, the track meet, May 6-7, and the May party are all worth one's time.

See to it that you do your part in making these a success by having your work so well handled each week that there is no need to cram on these particular occasions. Since everyone knows these events are coming, all the foresighted ones will have their lamps trimmed and filled.

Do Your Bit.

Our college is now beginning a new term of school and every student—that means YOU—should resolve to do better in some things that he has done and to do some things that he never has done.

One of the things which you should do better than ever before or should begin anew, is to help your college paper. Did you ever stop to think just how much the Green and White has meant to your school life? You may say sometimes, "Oh, there isn't much news in that thing!" but if you stop to remind yourself, you can recollect how on Wednesday you have seen folks run to the chair in the corridor or come in the library scanning the Courier before they settled themselves to study that old dry lesson.

Now be honest with yourself, wouldn't you miss the Courier a LITTLE BIT? Of course you would, and if you want to enjoy it still more, just take it upon yourself to report to some member of the staff any piece of news that you have seen, read or heard about, whether they ask you for it or not. For even tho every single staff member should work the best he could, it is almost impossible to get a corner on all the news that's going among several hundred people.

If you know the least bit of news don't forget it, and don't forget to see that it has a chance to get printed. If you can't decide whether it's news or just gossip, don't keep it to yourself but let Miss Winn be judge of that. Our faculty members are visited every week and they help very much but you should do your part too. If you do, the Journalists can't help but get more enthusiastic and do better work themselves. They will strive hard to write the news you give them accurately and in an interesting manner.

Our school is what we make it and everyone should aid in any enterprise that contributes to the school spirit. A good live college paper is an important factor in promoting the spirit of a school. Won't you try to "Do Your Bit?"

Where to Find College Papers.

Students who wish to read the papers published by other colleges will find them on the lower shelf of the magazine rack. They are placed there each week after the editor of, Here and There Among the Colleges, has read them.

We receive papers from ten Missouri colleges and from colleges in Texas, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Idaho and Washington.

A number of papers from high schools will be found on the same shelf.

Miss Brunner Speaks at Forker.

Miss Brunner spoke at a Parent-Teacher's Association at Forker, Mo., Feb. 25. The subject of her talk was "The Educational Situation in Missouri and Needed Legislation." The community at Forker is a very progressive one. A four-year high school is maintained. One grade of the school is transported to school and plans are under way to transport other grades. It is the district in which Miss Miller's home is located. Evelyn Faye and Nelle Lowden, students here are graduates from the high school at Forker.

Mrs. Robert Richey, the grandmother of Mary Margaret Richey, died at her home in Maryville, Feb. 28.

THE GREEN AND WHITE COURIER

The Stroller.

Spring has come and the Stroller's thoughts lightly turn to love; but don't smile, it isn't the Stroller's case, but merely what he has observed on the campus and in the corridors. The old bench has regained its popularity and the seat under the birches is reserved days ahead.

But all this has not affected Leston Webb in the least for you can see him studiously applying himself from early morn till late at night.

The Stroller thinks Mr. Leeson believes in rushing the season not that he has been making love but he wore his straw hat and made garden during the vacation.

One dismal rainy morning not long ago the Stroller happened to stroll past the home of Rev. Mapel. What do you suppose she saw? Rev. Mapel was putting "Little Willie's" rubbers on him, preparatory to sending him on his merry way to school.

The Stroller overheard a new student ask this question: "What is that new building west of the athletic field?"

Senior: "Oh, that is the hog dormitory."

The Stroller thinks most of the diners at the chicken dinner did not see a funny mistake the waiters made. But the Stroller himself and a number of others were given bowls of gravy which the waiters had mistaken for soup. Later there was consternation and a hasty snatching of bowls from before the first comers. Fortunately for the rest no spoons had been supplied or some folks would have been gravyless.

At that same famous dinner the Stroller saw several evidences of the situation with which he began this discussion and if the victims continue to be so much in evidence, he will tell all the readers of the Courier about it in future editions.

Y. W. GAVE BANQUET FOR EASTERN RELIEF

Just between the stairs leading into the library a dark, mysterious, foreign-appearing booth was constructed. The placard attached to this explained to the multitude that inside the tiny room sat the Hindu palmist, who would foretell the future for and read the character of anyone for the small cost of one dime. So great was the demand upon this magician that she went home hoarse and exhausted from her evening's labor. The door receipts from these stunts and the money cleared from the candy sold during the evening helped materially to increase the donation for the Eastern Relief.

February 22, 1921.

My Dear Philos,

"Everyone of you"

For several weeks there has been something ringing in my ears. I couldn't quite catch it until the other day and this is what I heard:

Cheer, Bunch, Cheer,
For the Philos have the floor,
Holy smoke, just hear the Philos Roar.

Now it must have been a day dream but I know it is the truth and know the Philos have the floor and no one dare dispute it.

Altho I am a long way off my mind keeps drifting back to M. S. T. C. It doesn't stop at that but goes straight into that long-to-be-remembered room of the Philomathean Society.

I know it is nearing the time of the contests and your time is limited but I want you to stop long enough to remember I am always with you in thoughts and good wishes. I just wish I was there to do my little part this year in the contests.

I have been recently voted into the Athenian Society here at K. S. A. C. I really feel it an honor to become a member of this Society because it is of the highest standard. They won the Debating contest this year and placed more members on the College team than the other societies. The society oratorical contest is Saturday evening, February 26. We are planning for a big time then. This Oratorical Contest here is similar to our contests in M. S. T. C., in enthusiasm and competition.

Just one more word.
Philos keep up your Old Time Pep.
You've got the "Pep"
Along with the stuff,
And you're never a bluff.

Hoping to hear from you soon
I am

Your former member,

Dora Scheffskey Uses Project Method at Graham.

The project method of teaching has proven very successful in the teaching of Vitalized Agriculture in the seventh and eighth grades at Graham, Mo., taught by Dora Scheffskey. She attended S. T. C. last summer and here gained the idea of the project method.

The following is an account of the work accomplished under her direction and all are excellent examples of the school project.

The eighth grade made a chart to use in history to show the events during each president's administration. The class intended to leave this for the use of future classes but they have been requested to send it to the State Fair.

Another interesting project was: "How our homes can be made more convenient." Under this was studied means of heating, lighting, ventilating, different ways to secure running water in the home, how to keep the home clean and labor-saving devices. After studying and discussing the home for several months a modern home near the schoolhouse was visited. The homekeeper taught the class for one day. She explained to the class the arrangement of her house; the use of her labor-saving devices; proper disposal of waste and other interesting features of her home. After this the class wrote compositions and made posters on the subject.

Two other projects were, "How should our homes be located with reference to heat, light, drainage, roads?" and "How can our homes be beautified?"

"What has made our coal?" was the project used in geography. The glacier period, rock layers, oil, natural gas and mineral waters were subjects discussed. This was followed by a trip to a mineral well near which a new shaft was being made with a core drill. Coal had been encountered. A government geologist was employed there. He gave a talk to the class and explained to them the formation of coal, limestone, shale and mineral water.

Seed corn testing and the making of posters for the Health Poster Contest are projects now being developed.

Jeannie Blacklock was a guest of Elizabeth Moore, a former student, at Clarkdale, Feb. 25-28. Saturday evening, Feb. 26, they were entertained at dinner by Virgelia Birt and her sister Nora Belle, former students of the college. They visited at the home of Ada Fae Arnold, a former student, Sunday, Feb. 27.
